Beginning in August 1988, air temperature observations were taken with an electronic maximum minimum system. The liquid-in-glass thermometers serve as backup during frequent electric power outages. Since October 1979, a paper-recording battery-powered hygrothermograph has served as backup to both standard systems for occasions when an observer is unavailable. All air temperatures were recorded in degrees Fahrenheit to the nearest whole degree. For this report the temperatures have been converted to the Celsius scale. Snowfall was recorded to the nearest 0. 1 inch and snow on the ground recorded to the nearest whole inch. For this report, average precipitation records were converted to centimeters. Snow-on-the-ground data have not been analyzed for this report.
