Excerpt: . is enthusiastic in the cause, but as yet has many obstacles to contend with. I was disappointed to see that with the exception of a few large buildings very little improvement has been made in Chicago, on the principal business streets by way of new buildings, since the World s Fair, when I visited that city last. The elevated road, which is looked upon as an achievement in rapid transit, adds greatly to the noise and din of the street traffic in Chicago, and at first sight I should say that even if San Francisco is not abreast with Chicago in many respects, all who are privileged to call San Francisco their home, have much to be thankful for when comparing conditions with those which prevail in the great city by the lakes Reaching New York by the Limited L. S. 82 M. S. N. Y. Central, which offers many luxuries and comforts that I had never before the privilege to enjoy while traveling, I was most agreeably surprised by the improved, or I might better say, redeemed look of this city, which is entirely free and forever rid of overhead wires of all and any kind. Having vividly in mind the network of wires and the horribly ugly and inharmonious poles which disfigure our beautiful streets, at least which could so easily be beautiful, the contrast was so great that I made a vow never to rest after my return until..
